Organized Rum Trusts Hiring Young Women as Liquor Smugglers and Bootleg Distributors

INFORMATION GIVEN OUT AT THE TREASURY

ASSISTANT SECRETARY LOWMAN SAYS YOUNG WOMEN HAVE BEEN ARRESTED

SAID THEY WORK ON COMMISSION BASIS HAULING RUM ACROSS BORDER

Washington, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Organized rum trusts are employing some young women as liquor smugglers and bootleg distributors, it was learned at the treasury today.

Assistant Secretary of Treasury Lowman said a number of young women, some hardly out of their teens, had been captured recently when they attempted to smuggle whisky into the United States from Canada.

He said that these women work on a straight commission basis, bringing automobile loads of rum across the border. Their appearance is pleasing, and they hope to avoid close inspection by their winning ways, it was said.

Lowman pointed out that the government now has 455 border-patrol officers equipped with nearly 300 automobiles and motor boats and suggested that the new type liquor runner fares no better than male colleagues.

It was also learned that while officials believe there are at least 10 men bootleggers to every woman "bootician," many young girls are being lured into the illicit business by huge profits. Authorities said big liquor vendors employ young girls to make city deliveries as they are less likely to be suspected by police.

The battle occurred between the Mejd Mutair Wahabi tribe led by Sheikh Feisal Ed Dowish and the Bedouins led by Beni Sakr after Dowish had asked the Bedouins for tribute in the name of King Ibn Saud, sultan of Mejd.

When the Bedouins refused, the Wahabis attacked and killed 120 men of the Bedouins. Beni Sakr ordered a counter attack and in the fighting more than 100 Wahabis were killed and the rest of the force was routed.

It was recalled that Dowish was the rebel leader who raided Iraq on the border in December. This resulted in desolation to many villages. The British sent troops to punish the leaders of the attack.

BLIZZARD HITS MIDDLE WEST EARLY TODAY

BRINGS TO AN END PERIOD OF SPRING-LIKE WEATHER

SNOW NEARLY FOOT DEEP FALLS OVER MAJORITY OF AREA

Chicago, Feb. 18.—(UP)—A blizzard, accompanied by near zero weather, struck the middle west today, bringing to an end a period of spring-like weather.

Snow to a depth of nearly a foot fell over the major portion of the area. Chicago experienced a fall of eight inches, and the drifts piled several feet deep, whipped by an icy wind.

Early reports gave a death list of two, but the toll was sure to mount when more complete reports were available. Property damage was great.

One man was killed and two were injured in a train wreck attributed directly to the storm.

Minor traffic accidents were plentiful. Many traffic tieups resulted from the slippery condition of the pavements.

The second large storm of the winter imposed discomfort rather than acute suffering, however.

William G. Anderson, 30, brakeman, was crushed to death when a north bound freight train on the main track of the Chicago belt line crashed past into the rear of another freight train. Anderson was working on the standing train.

August Linneman, 52, engineer, and Albert Zenaty, 25, fireman, on the moving train were seriously injured and taken to a hospital.

Linneman said he was switching box cars and backed into the other train, being unable to see it because of the snow.

The storm, which struck the midwest yesterday morning, was continuing with little abatement early today.

The weather bureau forecast colder weather today, but promised a thaw Sunday.

Air mail service to and from Chicago was crippled by the storm. Planes from New York were forced to stop at Cleveland and send the mails to Chicago by rail. Planes from the west coast to Chicago were reported down at Rock Springs, Wyo.

New York, Feb. 18.—(UP)—The mid-west cold weather will extend to the eastern seaboard by tonight, weather bureau officials predicted today.

Overnight there was rain and snow and the temperature dropped slightly, in New York City. In some suburbs snow was reported of one and two inch depth.

Hickman and Hunt are charged with killing Ivy Toms, druggist, during a hold-up.

TREASURY USES AN OLD LAW IN ENFORCEMENT WORK

PERMITS RAIDS TO BE MADE WITHOUT SEARCH WARRANTS

ALSO ALLOWS DEPARTMENT TO CONFISCATE PROPERTY, PENDING ACTION

Washington, Feb. 18.—(UP)—The treasury has adopted the policy of using the old internal revenue law as a reinforcement measure to suppress illicit liquor traffic.

Decision to use this statute, written years before prohibition and intended to operate against mountaineer moonshiners, was made by Assistant Secretary of Treasury Lowman.

"Suspicion that there is a violation of the internal revenue law is sufficient to make raids without search warrants, whereas dry agents operating under the Volstead act must have a search warrant before making raids," Lowman said. "This law also allows us to confiscate property, pending disposition of the case by courts, but it does not allow federal officers to break up property."

"We approve the confiscation of all movable property but it should be removed to storage with as little breakage as possible."

"Then if the courts order the property restored it can be returned and the government will not face difficulties for breakage."

Lowman said agents would continue to operate under the Volstead act except in big cases where violators defy padlocks, whereupon the old law will be used.

He explained that the old laws were to be used "from time to time in every state" and prohibition administrators already have orders to use their own judgment as to "which law to apply when necessary."

OTHER BOATS AID PICKING UP PASSENGERS

2 MEN 2 WOMEN NOW REPORTED MISSING AT SAN FRANCISCO

MOST OF THE PEOPLE ON BOARD WERE COMMUTERS TURNING TO OAKLAND

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 18.—(UP)—Four persons, two women and two men were reported missing early today by Key System officials in connection with the ferry Peralta accident in San Francisco bay last night.

They are Mary Lewis, Oakland, J. W. Collins, Oakland, Hugh Findlay, Berkeley, and Evelyn Kraft, Berkeley.

More than 20 persons were reported as missing shortly after the accident, but all but four were located later.

Approximately 100 persons went overboard when a huge wave swept the deck of the boat and sent the passengers into a panic. Water rushed over the Peralta as it passed Goat Island in the center of the bay, causing a panic among the passengers.

Passengers rushed forward and threw the bow under. This added further to the panic and many jumped overboard. Others were swept overboard by the heavy waves.

Most of the passengers were commuters returning from San Francisco to Oakland. Several hundred were aboard the vessel.

The Peralta soon was righted and its boats were lowered. The crew pulled several of the passengers from the water. Others were rescued by the crew of the ferryboat Hayward, which was proceeding near the Peralta when the disaster occurred.

All available police boats and harbor patrols rushed to the scene and began a search of the water between the Peralta and Goat Island, 100 yards from where the boat stood.

A search along the shore of Goat Island revealed no trace of any of the passengers who might have reached shore.

Reports collected by harbor police showed that more than 60 passengers were rescued.

San Francisco, Feb. 18.—Six separate investigations were started today to determine the death list and fix responsibility for the accident to the ferryboat Peralta in San Francisco bay late yesterday.

The Peralta, crowded to the rails with commuters at the peak of the evening rush, shipped a heavy wave forward as it neared the Oakland side.

A number of persons were washed overboard and at least seven still were reported missing early today.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 18.—The unofficial list of missing in the accident to the ferry boat Peralta reached ten today.

Two persons reported in the first missing list of seven were found at their homes but five new names including a child of 3, and its mother were added.

Investigators reported the loss of life was at least ten and believed several others perished in the icy waters of San Francisco bay late yesterday when the ferry shipped a heavy wave.

CHARGED WITH SPYING TO LEARN SECRETS OF CHEMICAL TRADE

Duesseldorf, Germany, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Guido Meisel, of Portsmouth, N. H., was found guilty today after a secret trial, of espionage in trying to learn chemical secrets, and was sentenced to serve one year's imprisonment in addition to being fined 5,000 marks.

Meisel was arrested last June, charged with trying to penetrate dye secrets in behalf of American chemical interests. He was held in close confinement. His wife, Marian, was permitted to visit him once a week—always in the presence of officials. He was permitted no other visitors.

It was understood that the German dye trust was behind the case, as its interests were held to be affected.

TREASURY USES AN OLD LAW IN ENFORCEMENT WORK

PERMITS RAIDS TO BE MADE WITHOUT SEARCH WARRANTS

ALSO ALLOWS DEPARTMENT TO CONFISCATE PROPERTY, PENDING ACTION

Washington, Feb. 18.—(UP)—The treasury has adopted the policy of using the old internal revenue law as a reinforcement measure to suppress illicit liquor traffic.

Decision to use this statute, written years before prohibition and intended to operate against mountain moonshiners, was made by Assistant Secretary of Treasury Lowman.

"Suspicion that there is a violation of the internal revenue law is sufficient to make raids without search warrants, whereas dry agents operating under the Volstead act must have a search warrant before making raids," Lowman said.

"This law also allows us to confiscate property, pending disposition of the case by courts, but it does not allow federal officers to break up property."

"We approve the confiscation of all movable property but it should be removed to storage with as little breakage as possible."

"Then if the courts order the property restored it can be returned and the government will not face difficulties for breakage."

Lowman said agents would continue to operate under the Volstead act except in big cases where violators defy padlocks, whereupon the old law will be used.

He explained that the old laws were to be used "from time to time in every state" and prohibition administrators already have orders to use their own judgment as to "which law to apply when necessary."

OTHER BOATS AID PICKING UP PASSENGERS

2 MEN 2 WOMEN NOW REPORTED MISSING AT SAN FRANCISCO

MOST OF THE PEOPLE ON BOARD WERE COMMUTERS RETURNING TO OAKLAND

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 18.—(UP)—Four persons, two women and two men were reported missing early today by Key System officials in connection with the ferry Peralta accident in San Francisco bay last night.

They are Mary Lewis, Oakland, J. W. Collins, Oakland, Hugh Findlay, Berkeley, and Evelyn Kraft, Berkeley.

More than 20 persons were reported as missing shortly after the accident, but all but four were located later.

Approximately 100 persons went overboard when a huge wave swept the deck of the boat and sent the passengers into a panic.

Water rushed over the Peralta as it passed Goat Island in the center of the bay, causing a panic among the passengers.

Passengers rushed forward and threw the bow under. This added further to the panic and many jumped overboard. Others were swept overboard by the heavy waves.

Most of the passengers were commuters returning from San Francisco to Oakland. Several hundred were aboard the vessel.

The Peralta soon was righted and its boats were lowered. The crew pulled several of the passengers from the water. Others were rescued by the crew of the ferryboat Hayward, which was proceeding near the Peralta when the disaster occurred.

All available police boats and harbor patrols rushed to the scene and began a search of the water between the Peralta and Goat Island, 100 yards from where the boat stood.

A search along the shore of Goat Island revealed no trace of any of the passengers who might have reached shore.

Reports collected by harbor police showed that more than 60 passengers were rescued.

San Francisco, Feb. 18.—Six separate investigations were started today to determine the death list and fix responsibility for the accident to the ferryboat Peralta in San Francisco bay late yesterday.

The Peralta, crowded to the rails with commuters at the peak of the evening rush, shipped a heavy wave forward as it neared the Oakland side.

A number of persons were washed overboard and at least seven still were reported missing early today.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 18.—The unofficial list of missing in the accident to the ferry boat Peralta reached ten today.

Two persons reported in the first missing list of seven were found at their homes but five new names including a child of 3, and its mother were added.

Investigators reported the loss of life was at least ten and believed several others perished in the icy waters of San Francisco bay late yesterday when the ferry shipped a heavy wave.

BELGIAN TEAM SECOND AND ARGENTINE SQUAD WAS THIRD

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 18. (U.P.)—United States was victorious in the first round of the bobsleigh races of the winter games of the ninth Olympiad today when the number two team, piloted by William Fiske, flashed into first place.

The time for the United States team was 1 minute 38.9 seconds.

Belgium, piloted by Ernest Casimir-Lambert, was second in 1 minute 39.8 seconds and an Argentine team piloted by A. Gramajo, was third in 1 minute 40.1 seconds.

The course was comparatively slow for today's running. Twenty-five teams were entered.

Fourth place in the first round of the bobsleigh race went to the British team, steered by Cecil Pin in 1 minute 40.6 seconds; the German team, No. 2 British team piloted by Henry Martineaux and the Swiss No. 2 team finished in a dead heat for fifth place in one minute 41.7 seconds.

U. S. VICTORIOUS IN FIRST ROUND OF BOBSLEIGH RACES

NUMBER 2 TEAM PILOTED BY WILLIAM FISKE LEADS AT ST. MORITZ

BELGIAN TEAM SECOND AND ARGENTINE SQUAD WAS THIRD

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 18. (UP)—United States was victorious in the first round of the bobsleigh races of the winter games of the ninth Olympiad today when the number two team, piloted by William Fiske, flashed into first place.

The time for the United States team was 1 minute 38.9 seconds.

Belgium, piloted by Ernest Casimir-Lambert, was second in 1 minute 39.8 seconds and an Argentine team piloted by A. Gramajo, was third in 1 minute 40.1 seconds.

The course was comparatively slow for today's running. Twenty-five teams were entered.

Fourth place in the first round of the bobsleigh race went to the British team, steered by Cecil Pim in 1 minute 40.6 seconds; the German team, No. 2 British team piloted by Henry Martineaux and the Swiss No. 2 team finished in a dead heat for fifth place in one minute 41.7 seconds.

There were no accidents although the race was run over the difficult and winding course that starts from Badrutts Park.

The final round of the races will be run tomorrow.

Betting was 3-1 against Fiske's American team, 6-1 against Lam-Argentinians, and 10-1 against Mar-ber's Belgians, 9-1 against Gramajo's tinue's British.

Betting odds had been 25-1 against the Argentinians, but their brilliant showing in preliminary runs caused a rush of bettors to back them at those odds.

Canada beat Great Britain, 14-0, at ice hockey.

Know Your Sweetheart by His Handwriting remedy.

When you find the sign of nervousness in the writing of a friend, do not encourage him to retire and refuse to meet others. Rather urge him to get in touch with as many different personalities as he can during the day.

The first indication of nervousness will be obviously a shaky looking writing. Variation in the size of the letters in one word will show this trait.

T bars made far to the left and an angle of writing leaning far to the right are unfailing points for the uncovering of nervousness in the writer.

When the lines of the writing run down hill, lowering to the right, or when there are two or three different degrees of slants to the writing, you may be sure that a lack of poise or calmness will be evident in the writer.

Little neatness is found in the script or complete letter of the person lacking stability. If an effort is made to produce a neat letter it will be plainly visible to the reader. An appearance of words being tressed on the paper signifies the trait of impatience that is really called nervousness.

TO LIGHTEN LONG HOURS

Cloth scrap books for disabled soldiers and crippled children are a happy inspiration for the church organization, girls' club or neighborhood group that would like to do something for these unfortunate ones not only at Christmas time but throughout the year, yet does not have much money to do anything with.

These books cost practically nothing to make and their small cost can often be borne by a few who do not have time to give and are glad to make their contributions this way. Such books are ideal for hospital patients, being lightweight and pliable, and able to stand a lot of handling.

The books are made out of flour bags, unripped and washed, which can be had from almost any baker for a few cents. To remove the stamping cover the inked spots with lard or soak them in kerosene overnight. Then wash the bag out in lukewarm water. One such bag will fold into a 24-page book, size 10 by 12. The edges are left raw or may be plucked. The book is stitched down the middle when open, or tied with colored cord like a Christmas card. A good grade of glue should be used, not too thick.

On the front page, paste some attractive colored picture from a magazine cover. For the contents, collect a lot of magazines—fiction, humor and children's publications, especially those with plenty of good illustrations and large type. From these clip the cream, remembering whom they are intended for and keep them from being too depressing on the one hand and too preachy or Polyanahish on the other. Some of the best fiction and non-fiction published every year appears first in serial form and all the installments of one such work pasted together in a single book make excellent reading. A book solid with jokes is apt to be a bore. Combined with light verse, interesting illustrations, crossword and other puzzles, it is many times more absorbing. Be sure to paste the answers to puzzles at the back of the book. For the children's books get in as much color as possible and include not only magazine clippings but pretty valentines, pictures to be colored, and simple "hidden object" puzzles.

Season of Black and Accessories

Every Woman Knows Need of Decorations That Add to Her Appearance.

With a season of black facing us, all black, black with color, and that still smarter interpretation, black with rhinestones or other buckles of fanciful design, accessories become more and more important, asserts a fashion authority in the Kansas City Star. Paris houses have so stressed them that every woman feels the need of a flower for her dress, an appropriate neck chain, a bracelet of distinction or a handsome buckle as important as a pair of gloves. Indeed, the bag has taken almost the place in the costume the gloves once occupied.

Perhaps all this may be traced to the ensemble idea which is as fine a basis for good dressing as ever has been presented to women. A perfect ensemble will transform a woman from mediocrity to distinction. When Parisian designers design accessories they have in mind a perfect costume on which these are to furnish high lights, decorative, colorful and chic.

Consider the Callot shawl, a circular shawl of gold lace that reaches the hemline of the short skirt, certainly a shawl that enhances the beauty of the evening gown of either black or color. The Callot scarf of gold brocade edged with gold lame, has the same delightful effect on the dancing frock.

Chanel's lace kerchief was designed to soften the new necklines, some of them square and wide; others of a near Victorian roundness.

Each unit of the ensemble is tuned to the same pitch, or the result is not harmony. It matters little whether the wrap be long or short, straight or of the swinging cape variety; what does matter is that a close relationship be preserved, a relationship that includes the occasion. No woman, no matter how elegantly clad, is ever well dressed unless her clothes are appropriate to the occasion on which they are worn.

Although black deserves mention in capitals, since it is smart, colors are really typical of the times. The three tonal blues sponsored by Le-long and called "L. L. blues" are important, as well as all blues. Also important are all shades of beige and brown, colors that are present in all types of dresses, including evening gowns. The use of these shades in evening gowns is a new departure in rich amber shades and old ivory tones.

Among the greens, those which trend toward a yellowish tint and the soft green peculiar to ferns must be mentioned as leaders. Pineneedle is a

Rachael and Her Renunciation

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

RACHAEL ANSTRUTHERS and Marjorie Chilton were the best friends in the world. Nothing, the two girls declared to each other, should ever cast a cloud upon their friendship.

But something did and that something was a young man, John Rathbun, a youth possessed of that rare combination, money and brains. Such a combination is attractive; all the girls set their caps at John. But when Rachael came on the scene the others had no chance.

At first Marjorie was all smiles and congratulations with her friend over the conquest she had made of the much-sought-after John. "Nonsense," said Rachael, "he doesn't care any more for me than he does for you. In fact, I think he is a little more attentive to you. Why, we are almost always together when he calls. And besides, you have that delightful Robert Emberley devoted to you. Anyway, I'm going to take up settlement work and live an old maid."

"Thus she spoke, but she didn't really mean a word of what she said. She had been flattered at first by the attentions of John Rathbun—only flattered. Then these had rapidly grown up in her virginal breast another feeling. She did not dare to tell it love, but she feared—and hoped—it was.

As Rachael spoke in her light, bantering manner a cloud seemed to pass over the face of Marjorie. She sat silent for a minute, her eyes fixed vacantly, then sighed and said: "Ah, Rachael, you cannot deceive me with such idle words. No, no, don't put your arm around me. I cannot bear it now. It is not your fault; but let me alone."

Rachael sat thoughtful and sorrowful after Marjorie had gone. "She is in love with John, too," she thought. "And perhaps, if it were not for me, he would marry her. He likes her, I know he does, he told me so. And I suppose I ought to give him up to her."

Rachael passed a wretched night. Several times she brought herself to the point where she resolved to make the great renunciation; and then thought of John again and cried out that he belonged to her and to none other. At times she almost hated Marjorie for daring to love him, too. But she would have a talk with Marjorie—a long, frank talk—and then she would see. The next afternoon she went to Marjorie's house and found her working in her garden, a flower herself amid the other flowers she was tending. She looked so sweet, so pretty, so delicate, it sent a pain through Rachael's heart to think that this young, fair creature must have her whole life blighted through hopeless love. And she, Rachael, had the power to avert such a doom from her.

"Yes," she must make the renunciation. It would be like tearing her heart out; but she must do it and try and find some compensation in the knowledge that she had made her friend happy through the loss of a lover who would never love her.

"Come with me," she said, "Marjorie," and she, "I have something important to say to you." And putting her arm around the waist of her friend she led her to a little rustic summer house, Marjorie, all the while, prattling about her flowers and calling on Rachael to admire them.

"You seem in good spirits today, Marjorie," said Rachael, when they had seated themselves, "better spirits than you were last night. But you cannot deceive the eye of your friend. I know what is in your heart. I know the cause of your depression last night."

"Do you?" cried Marjorie. "How did you know? Who told you?"

"I did not need anyone to tell me," replied Rachael slowly; "I saw that you loved him."

"Yes," said Marjorie, "I really believe I do. I didn't realize it until lately, and then when he— But never mind, it's all over now. Everything is quite all right."

"No," returned Rachael, "it is not all over. I came to bring you happiness."

"Bring me happiness? What are you talking about? I am happy now," laughed Marjorie.

"I come to tell you," Rachael went on, "that I give him up to you. You are more worthy of him than I am."

"Oh, him up to me?" cried Marjorie. "You can't give him up to me for he never was yours. He's mine; he told me so last night when I met him after I had left you."

Rachael felt as if she were going to faint. So John Rathbun had been in love with Marjorie all the time; had only been playing with her own affection. With an effort she pulled herself together.

"Well, John will make you a good husband," she managed to say.

"John?" cried Marjorie. "All you can think of is your John. I am talking about Robert Emberley. We had a little lovers' quarrel day before yesterday and when I saw you last night I had a fit of the blues. But we've made up again. You didn't really think I was in love with John Rathbun, did you, dear?"

"Oh, no, not at all," replied Rachael. "What do you say, Marjorie; shall we have a double wedding?"

TO LIGHTEN LONG HOURS

Cloth scrap books for disabled soldiers and crippled children are a happy inspiration for the church organization, girls' club or neighborhood group that would like to do something for these unfortunate ones, not only at Christmas time but throughout the year, yet does not have much money to do anything with. These books cost practically nothing to make and their small cost can often be borne by a few who do not have time to give and are glad to make their contributions this way. Such books are ideal for hospital patients, being lightweight and pliable, and able to stand a lot of handling. The books are made out of flour bags, unripped and washed, which can be had from almost any baker for a few cents. To remove the stamping, cover the inked spots with lard or oil then in kerosene overnight. Then wash the bag out in lukewarm water. One such bag will fold into a 24-page book, size 10 by 12. The edges are left raw or may be pinked. The book is stitched down the middle when open, or tied with colored cord like a Christmas card. A good grade of glue should be used, not too thick. On the front page, paste some attractive colored picture from a magazine cover. For the contents, collect a lot of magazines—fiction, humor and children's publications, especially those with plenty of good illustrations and large type. From these clip the cream, remembering whom they are intended for and keep them from being too depressing on the one hand and too preachy or Pollyanna-ish on the other. Some of the very best fiction and non-fiction published every year appears first in serial form, and all the installments of one such work pasted together in a single book make excellent reading. A book solid with jokes is apt to be a bore. Combined with light verse, interesting illustrations, crossword and other puzzles, it is many times more absorbing. Be sure to paste the answers to puzzles at the back of the book. For the children's books get in as much color as possible and include not only magazine clippings but pretty valentines, pictures to be colored, and simple "hidden object" puzzles.

green that has many followers. One is apt to find these satisfying shades, coupled with the shadow-like grays in which so many of the new furs are found.

Season of Black and Accessories

Every Woman Knows Need of Decorations That Add to Her Appearance.

With a season of black facing us, all black, black with color, and that still smarter interpretation, black with rhinestones or other buckles of fanciful design, accessories become more and more important, asserts a fashion authority in the Kansas City Star. Paris houses have so stressed them that every woman feels the need of a flower for her dress, an appropriate neck chain, a bracelet of distinction or a handsome buckle as important as a pair of gloves. Indeed, the bag has taken almost the place in the costume the gloves once occupied. Perhaps all this may be traced to the ensemble idea which is as fine a basis for good dressing as ever has been presented to women. A perfect ensemble will transform a woman from mediocrity to distinction. When Parisian designers design accessories they have in mind a perfect costume on which these are to furnish high lights, decorative, colorful and chic.

Consider the Callot shawl, a circular shawl of gold lace that reaches the hemline of the short skirt, certainly a shawl that enhances the beauty of the evening gown of either black or color. The Callot scarf of gold brocade edged with gold lame, has the same delightful effect on the dancing frock.

Chanel's lace kerchief was designed to soften the new necklines, some of them square and wide; others of a near Victorian roundness. Each unit of the ensemble is tuned to the same pitch, or the result is not harmony. It matters little whether the wrap be long or short, straight or of the swinging cape variety; what does matter is that a close relationship be preserved, a relationship that includes the occasion. No woman, no matter how elegantly clad, is ever well dressed unless her clothes are appropriate to the occasion on which they are worn.

Although black deserves mention in capitals, since it is smart, colors are really typical of the times. The three tonal blues sponsored by Le long and called "L. L. blues" are important, as well as all blues. Also important are all shades of beige and brown, colors that are present in all types of dresses, including evening gowns. The use of these shades in evening gowns is a new departure in rich amber shades and old ivory tones. Among the greens, those which tend toward a yellowish cast and the soft green peculiar to ferns must be mentioned as leaders. Pineapple is a

Decries Mode Changes American Women Demand

There is no such thing as "the prevailing fashion" or "the prevailing mode" in women's clothes, declares Madeleine Vionnet, famous Paris dressmaker, in the Delineator Magazine. Mme. Vionnet strongly deprecates the constant cry of American women for what they term "new modes." "The mode," says the Parisian couturier, "no longer exists for any of anything more than the best manner of draping a given fabric over a given woman, so that each shall show off the other to the best possible advantage. Every woman ought to have her own manner of dress, her 'mode'—and this is the mode which I should be only too happy to seek for each if she would only follow it. Women ought only to ask of our skill and our experience the ability to bring out their own selves, not to create for them a uniform of which they will rapidly tire, forcing us to constant change. Women, according to their age and their natural conformation, may be divided into four or five well-defined categories and it is very rare for the mode of one season to resemble the mode of another. True, Vionnet characterizes the mode of Americans as excellent. Of it she says: "It must have dignity. No one is content to say of a dress, 'it is beautiful.' She must also have 'it is new.'"

THE BOY SCOUT ORGANIZATION

FIVE years ago a Council of Boy Scouts was chartered with the office of the Scout Executive in Brainerd. The whole expense of maintenance fell upon the people of this city and the funds required were quickly and cheerfully provided. Since then the Council area has been increased to include neighboring counties and the expense of maintenance has been shared by those additional subdivisions, thereby reducing the cost in Brainerd to about one-third the sum which was required originally.

The number of Brainerd boys who have been members of Scout Troops total about 500, a surprisingly large number. Boys come and go, but most of the boys now enrolled have records of several years to their credit. This is primarily due to the very efficient leadership that has been developed. Suitable men to act as Scout masters are now more easily obtainable. If a boy enrolls at the age of twelve, he has ample opportunity to progress in scouting at the same pace as he develops physically and mentally and thereby finds opportunity to take advantage of that part of the program which is designed for older boys. That holds the boy in Scouting. It develops the desire and satisfies the desire to become a leader among boys.

Scouting has become as essential a part of our man-making process as has the public school, and it has proved that it performs a needed service that the school can not perform adequately. It may seem strange, then, that the question should arise whether Brainerd should now continue or disband its organization. It is a matter that rests upon our citizens, because it results solely from the inability of providing about $2,500 annually to finance the work. If 250 people will subscribe $10 a piece, or 500 subscribe $5 a piece, the sum is raised without any one drawing very heavily on his purse. It is pitiful to contemplate that this very important organization should be permitted to totter and fall for want of sufficient funds. The situation has become critical. What are we going to do about it? Shall we disappoint youth by telling it that grown-ups can not maintain this very important institution?

NEW DAILY AT WILLMAR

IN commenting on the new daily published at Willmar, Alvah Eastman of the St. Cloud Daily Journal-Press says:

Victor Lawson is publishing a remarkably good daily in the Tribune of Willmar—but what he is doing for that city does not seem to be appreciated by the merchants of his town. The subscription price does not leave any great profit from the white paper—and to give the news service that the Tribune is doing costs a lot of money.

If the business men of Willmar want the daily Tribune continued they should not expect the publishers to carry all the financial load, and that is about what Editor Lawson is doing. The best investment merchants can make is the right kind of advertising in their home paper.

WISH TO ENLARGE BAND

AMBITIOUS plans of friends of the Brainerd Boys Concert band are to enlarge the organization to one of 60 members. Other cities, like St. Cloud and Bemidji, have boys bands of over 100 membership, and are thriving well.

The present membership of the Brainerd band is 35. Brainerd parents should take advantage of the opportunities offered to gain a musical education for their children and should encourage their boys to join the band.

The band is making admirable progress under the direction of F. G. Becky.

GREAT POSSIBILITIES

THE other day a group of middle aged men were discussing the wonderful results achieved by an intelligent manipulation of muscles, massage and resetting of ligaments, etc., and a leader of the party wondered if such treatment might not improve one's golf play.

The first thing to be sought, said he, is to gain that perfect coordination of muscle and mind. It is that same coordination which in baseball results in the resounding swat that enables Babe Ruth to pound the ball over the fence and to score a home run.

If that same coordination can be secured in golf play it will mean that the player will drive properly. He will be a paragon in golf or any other sport.

WILLIAM COSGRAVE, president of the Irish Free State, has shown himself a real keen witted diplomat. While visiting America, a reporter asked him whether he thought Washington a greater man than Lincoln. The Irishman replied: "Saint Thomas a Kempis tells us that we must never contrast the holiness of saints."

WITH long distance telephoning an assured fact and television making strides, and radio developing every day, and thought transference claimed possible by English scientists, the married man will gradually be so hemmed in that it will be impossible for him to successfully prevaricate, in other words, he will not be able to tell a lie to his better half.

THE Canadian government has taken another step indicating it has a mind of its own and that it can act independently of Britain. Canada has ordered construction of two new submarine destroyers to cost about $2,700,000. The vessels are wanted for coast patrol and will relieve English ships of that duty.

If you are to drive in the country on the main highways, use a car, says the Little Falls Daily Transcript. If you are to use side roads only, use a sleigh. If you are to use both—main highways and side roads—you are out of luck.

ICY roads these days preclude any fast driving. Brakes and chains do little to retard the speed and often result in the skidding in which a car becomes helpless.

WE have read several excerpts entitled "Your Income Tax in a Nutshell." If that thing can be put in a nutshell, it is a real feat of legerdemain.

AFTER a man gets married, says the Motley Mercury, he has less to say about what he can or can not afford.

Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

The Vasquez ranch is coveted by Buckwell, San Francisco boss. Old Vasquez won't sell. Buckwell and lawyer, Brandon, plan to void the Vasquez land grant. Brandon's nephew, Terry, loves Dolores, Vasquez's beautiful granddaughter, and wants Vasquez of plot. Vasquez spurns warning and informs Terry that Dolores must marry young Spaniard. Terry, heartbroken, goes on spree. Dolores seeks Terry in Frisco's Barbary Coast and is disillusioned in him. Buckwell meets Dolores and is intrigued. He lures her to Frisco under guise of aiding Terry finds them and saves Dolores from Buckwell's unwelcome attention.

Terry's fighting Irish blood was aroused and he backed Buckwell into a corner with a volley of rights and lefts. Buckwell was slower, but any pounds heavier and every blow that he gave carried his full weight behind it.

Dolores stepped aside and watched breathlessly, in an agony of fear, lest Terry be hurt.

It was no time for idle sparring. Terry's anger was too much aroused. He wanted to avenge Buckwell's insult to Dolores without further delay. With a quick up-per cut he crossed a right to Buckwell's chin that sent the Czar of the Tenderloin careening back over the divan where he sprawled, half stunned. Terry stood over him menacingly.

"You will regret this insult,"

"For this insult it shall be my welcome pleasure to deal with you later."

famed the disheveled Buckwell, brushing dust from his dark coat. "You only got what you deserve, and you won't dare squeal," retorted Terry contemptuously, then turning to Dolores, "Do you know who he is?"

"Only his name and that he promised—he offered to help Grandfather and me keep the rancho."

"Well, he is Chris Buckwell—the very rotter who is trying to steal your home. It was he for whom my uncle tried to negotiate—that's how I know all about him. He is the biggest grafter in San Francisco!"

"Oh!" Dolores looked at Buckwell in amazement, then flared indignantly. "You the benefactor—the man who is trying to ruin us. You deceived my Grandfather and you tricked me into coming here!" her voice rang out clear and strong.

Buckwell felt her scorn but shrugged it aside with a smirk. His expression became cruel and he said with a leering smile, "You made but one mistake, my dear. I never try—I always accomplish, and I never waste time!" Bowing gracefully he turned his back on Dolores, then facing Terry continued in a cold, cruel tone, "For this insult it shall be my welcome pleasure to deal with you later."

Turning on his heel in military fashion he calmly left the room with the air of a conqueror rather than that of the vanquished.

The two young people watched Buckwell until the door closed behind him.

Terry brushed his hair back to place with his hand and turning to Dolores said pleadingly, "I'm terribly sorry about last night, but after your fiancé arrived, I—I—"

He paused awkwardly.

"My what?" questioned Dolores, looking at him intently.

"Your fiancé—the young Spaniard—your Grandfather told me all about it," finished Terry bravely.

"And you believed him!" Dolores threw back to him and laughed. "He wants us to be engaged but we never have and I never will be—I don't like him enough—for that," Dolores smiled and the very room vibrated with happiness.

Terry felt that he had been reborn into another world.

"Ah! Sure and I'm happy now!"

To the Brainerd and Range fans:

The game which was to be played this evening at the local high school between the first First National Bank Girls' of Minneapolis, undisputed champions of the N. W. has been called off due to the fact that W. C. Cobb, superintendent of the Brainerd city schools asked that fifty dollars be shown Thursday previous to the game date. We ask you Brainerdites how many basketball teams in this city have to live up to such a ruling before a game has taken place?

Last year we played the same team without having one half the money we have on hand at present and made exceptionally well. Why couldn't we go it this year?

We are sorry to have to give the Brainerd and Range fans such short notice of this game being called off, but also due to the unusual ruling we were at the time unaware.

Since Brainerd has not a Y. W. C. A. or any other organization that offers opportunities along this line we girls formed an athletic club of our own for the promotion of girls athletics. Our basketball team since two years of organization has only been defeated by the champions of the Northwest. For the benefit of the people who do not know the standing of this Minneapolis squad we can say that they are financed by the First National Bank of Minneapolis. These girls carry an exceptionally good basketball record. This fall they were contenders against an English team for the World's Amateur title for women.

In order to live up to our contract with this team we are obligated to play the game even though not in this city. The managements of the two quints have made arrangements for the game to take place at Milaca, Minn., Wednesday night, Feb. 22, at 8 o'clock since the Brainerd gymnasium could not be had except under impossible obligations.

The evening of the clash at Milaca a double header will be staged when the First National bank boys with Herb Joesting in the line up will play the Milaca stars.

COMMUNICATION

To the Dispatch.
Brainerd, Minn.

On account of numerous requests from groups of individuals wanting the use of the high school gymnasium for basketball purposes, the board of education at a meeting early in December discussed the matter at considerable length and finally passed a resolution to the effect that the high school gymnasium would only be let to permanent organizations in Brainerd as sponsors for any group or team that might care to use it for such purposes at times when it would not be used by regular school organizations.

The board at the same time fixed the compensation that was to be charged to cover the expense for such game. All games that have been held in the gym since this action of the school board have been under the auspices of some such organization.

Except for the payment of the rental charge which is fixed at $10, neither the board of education nor the superintendent have anything to do with the matter of billing games or calling off the same.

Concerning the game referred to in a communication to the Dispatch, neither the board of education nor the superintendent of schools had anything whatever to do with the cancelling of the game as it was a matter with which they are not concerned. The girls game was, we understand, to be handled under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and as the Y. M. C. A. organization would be the sponsors for the guarantee of both the rental and the payment of any other legitimate expenses, in case the game fell short of meeting expenses, we suppose that the game must have been cancelled under their direction.

It's the money you spend wisely that counts

Someone has said that a rich man has more fun keeping a budget than a man of moderate means. Because the money he saves is tangible, he can see it and invest it, and put it to work. Be that as it may, a budget is an invaluable help to anyone.

A budget helps you keep the right proportions between expenses, prevents you from spending more than is best for food and rent, or crimping more than you should on entertainment and luxury. But a budget is not a reason for getting cheap things, things in which you forfeit quality by attempting to save on price. A budget says to you: "Here is the amount of money you should spend for this. Spend all of it, but don't spend more." And it is up to you to get the best that can be got for that amount.

The person who spends his money wisely, who likes to get the utmost for it, always finds out from advertisements how he can spend it to the best advantage.

It is surprising how much more wisely you can buy if you make it a habit to read advertising. A little more value here . . . a little better workmanship there . . . in this thing slightly more durability . . . that product perhaps a bit finer. And every cent of money you spend for advertised merchandise will bring you greater comfort, a higher quality of goods, and a standard of excellence that is nationally recognized.

It certainly pays to read the advertisements

An Amazing Success

Feen-a-mint
The Chewing LAXATIVE

Chew It Like Chewing Gum

A pleasure to use. Very efficient. Children love it. No taste but that of sweet mint. The most popular laxative because it's a "satisfier." 15c and 25c.

It's the money you spend wisely that counts

Someone has said that a rich man has more fun keeping a budget than a man of moderate means. Because the money he saves is tangible, he can see it and invest it, and put it to work. Be that as it may, a budget is an invaluable help to anyone.

A budget helps you keep the right proportions between expenses, prevents you from spending more than is best for food and rent, or crimping more than you should on entertainment and luxury. But a budget is not a reason for getting cheap things, things in which you forfeit quality by attempting to save on price. A budget says to you: "Here is the amount of money you should spend for this. Spend all of it, but don't spend more." And it is up to you to get the best that can be got for that amount.

The person who spends his money wisely, who likes to get the utmost for it, always finds out from advertisements how he can spend it to the best advantage.

It is surprising how much more wisely you can buy if you make it a habit to read advertising. A little more value here . . . a little better workmanship there . . . in this thing slightly more durability . . . that product perhaps a bit finer. And every cent of money you spend for advertised merchandise will bring you greater comfort, a higher quality of goods, and a standard of excellence that is nationally recognized.

It certainly pays to read the advertisements

HOLD TWO BEMIDJI MEN FOR PILLAGER MURDER

Warrants Allege Implication in Shooting of Peter Nelson Last August

ARRESTED IN BEMIDJI

Deny Charges of Killing Watchman Who Attempted to Stop Burglary of Store

Warrants charging murder were served at Bemidji Thursday afternoon on Leigh Hendrixson, 35, and Charles Tappa, 37, in connection with the robbery of the E. P. Bacon general store at Pillager last August when Peter Nelson, night watchman was shot to death, according to word received here today.

The two have lived in the vicinity for several years. They will be arraigned in Walker, county seat of Cass county.

Hendrixson and Tappa denied the charge of murder when questioned by authorities at Bemidji yesterday. Nelson was shot to death as he attempted to prevent burglary of the Pillager store. Charles Tappa was arrested Dec. 3 by the Cass county authorities in connection with the Bena store robbery at Bemidji November 17 and later released after questioning. He will be further questioned in regard to a number of robberies and holdups in Cass county last year.

On the night of the Pillager robbery, a large touring car, resembling the old Packard driven by Tappa, was seen on the road soon after the store had been robbed and the watchman killed. Other evidence pointing to the guilt of the two suspects has been unearthed, authorities stated.

During the last several months several other robberies have occurred in the district around Brainerd and Pillager which police believe may have been enacted by Tappa and Hendrixson.

The Anoka bank robbery two years ago last fall, one of the "important jobs" of the state during the last ten years, which still remains unsolved, may be cleared up by Tappa and Hendrixson, police believe.

The warrants for the arrest of the two men were sworn out by Sheriff Morical of Cass county.

The Only Good Joy

It is wonderful that any man can wholly rejoice in this life who considers and weighs his banishment and the many dangers of his soul. Through levity of heart and the little thought we have of our defects, we feel not the sorrows of our soul, but often vainly laugh when in all reason we ought to weep. There is no true liberty nor any good joy but in the fear of God with a good conscience.—Thomas a Kempis.

Chickens Without Rubbers

Safety first in the home requires children to wear rubber overshoes in rainy weather. That fact had been impressed on four-year-old Jack who one rainy day looked out of the window and exclaimed, "Oh look, mom, there's one of Mrs. Adams' chickens out there in the yard with no rubbers on. What do you think of that?"

FEDERATED CHURCH WOMEN

(Contributed)

The Federated Church Women would like to announce to the general public a few facts concerning the three projects on the calendar for February.

The Federal Council of Churches in America are asking that the Book of John be read during this month. The Federated Church Women have given their hearty endorsement and have distributed the Gospel of John to their friends for this concerted reading.

The second project is the World Day of Prayer. This is to be observed Friday, February 24, at the First Congregational church. Watch next week's issues of this paper for the details concerning this meeting.

The third project is to help establish world friendship among children. Last year the dolls were sent to Japan. This year it is proposed that friendship school bags be sent to the children of Mexico, each bag to contain articles of interest and help in the school life of the children.

NEBRASKA WILDCAT CLAWS WAY TO WIN

ACE HUDKINS DEFEATS BAKER IN 10 ROUNDS

HUDKINS DEMONSTRATES STYLE AS RUSHING, TEARING, RIPPING FIGHTER

WILL NOW MEET DUNDEE IN 15 ROUND BOUT AT GARDEN ON MARCH 23

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Feb. 18.—Ace Hudkins is again athwart the path of Welterweight Champion Joe Dundee.

The Nebraska Wildcat removed the last obstacle to a title bout with Dundee when he clawed his way past Sergeant Sammy Baker in a great ten round bout in Madison Square Garden last night.

He will meet Dundee in a 15 round bout in the Garden on March 23 with the 147-pound title at stake.

Technically the welterweight champion is barred from fighting in New York state, but Tex Rickard will see to it that Dundee is reinstated at once.

A bout between Dundee and Hudkins probably will draw something in the neighborhood of $150,000.

The third meeting between Hudkins and Baker drew the largest crowd of the indoor season, 16,876 exceeding even the Sharkey-Heeney bout. The receipts were $76,459.

A rushing, tearing, ripping fighter, Hudkins has one of the largest followings of any man in the ring. He is popular with the crowd because he throws caution to the winds. Anything is likely to happen and frequently does.

More real fighting was packed into last night's fight than has been seen in the Garden this year.

After a slow first round Hudkins swung into action and still was going at top speed at the final bell. He whipped Baker decisively but he experienced several stormy moments before he came out on top.

Baker landed the hardest single blow of the fight in the eighth round—a right to the jaw that rocked Ace. Dazed, the Wildcat had to hang on through almost half the round.

Baker was on the floor twice and had his face cut and bleeding profusely through most of the fight. His lips were swollen from constant blows to the mouth.

A left to the side of the head dropped the sergeant unexpectedly in the second round. He took the count of nine but was on his knees at five.

A questionable low blow to the body in the fifth round sent Baker down again. He grabbed the lower regions of his body and slipped off the ropes to the floor to again take a count of nine. He had trouble finishing the round.

Hudkins won five rounds, Baker three and two were even.

The victory settled Hudkins' superiority over Baker who had won from him on a technical K. O. at the Polo Grounds last summer. Ace later took the decision from the sergeant in Los Angeles.

HORNSBY BANKS ON GOOD BATTING YEAR

MAN WHO BEATS HIM MUST LEAD NATIONAL LEAGUE

MUCH TRADED STAR SAYS HE FEELS RIGHT AT BEGINNING OF SEASON

FOR 6 CONSECUTIVE YEARS HE LED THE LEAGUE IN BAT- TING AVERAGE

By FOSTER EATON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 18.—Some-what defiantly, Rogers Hornsby packed his bat today and prepared for the Boston Braves winter quarters at St. Petersburg, Fla., with deliberate remark:

"The man who beats me this year will lead the league in batting."

The much traded star feels "right," he said, "but not any more so, I guess, than any other year." For six consecutive years he led the league, slumped when he managed the Cardinals, and recouped a bit last year with the Giants when he slumped .361.

Hornsby's life-time National League batting average—made in 1,689 games, is .3594, or .0004 less than the mark set by Paul Waner, the young Pittsburgh star, in 281 games. Waner took the life-time league record from Hornsby in 1922 when he led the league with .380.

The former Cardinals manager admitted Waner was "a great player" but added guardedly: "A man has got to be in there a period of years and stay up to show whether he can stand that pace."

He was asked how the approaching National League campaign looked.

"On paper, the Pirates look like they ought to repeat," he said, "with the Cardinals, Cubs and Giants and perhaps Cincinnati giving them a good run."

"I expect the Braves to finish certainly not less than fourth or fifth, and you never can tell, they might be right up there among them."

Hornsby appeared optimistic about the fighting chances of the Braves. "They have a good hitting team and one of the best young pitching staffs in the business," he said. "Those are things that count."

"But really you've got to look them over before you can dope out where you think they ought to finish. Just as they are, however, Boston can't finish lower than fifth."

He was told that Manager McGraw of the Giants had been quoted as expecting Andy Cohen to outfield him in his post at second base and that McGraw felt the Giants lost "only in hitting power" by the now famous trade.

"Once in a while," he commented, "you can win a ball game with a great play in the field, but it's runs you hit in that count. Cohen is a good player; McGraw is a great manager."

Hornsby is due in St. Petersburg "Monday or Tuesday," he said.

As an after-thought he was asked whether he understood his trade to Boston any better now than he did the day it was made.

"Not a bit more," he replied. "That's simply baseball. I'm reporting at St. Petersburg Monday or Tuesday, and I'll give the Braves the best I've got."

NEBRASKA WILDCAT CLAWS WAY TO WIN

ACE HUDKINS DEFEATS BAKER IN 10 ROUNDS

HUDKINS DEMONSTRATES STYLE AS RUSHING, TEARING, RIPPING FIGHTER

WILL NOW MEET DUNDEE IN 15 ROUND BOUT AT GARDEN ON MARCH 23

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Feb. 18.—Ace Hudkins is again athwart the path of Welterweight Champion Joe Dundee.

The Nebraska Wildcat removed the last obstacle to a title bout with Dundee when he clawed his way past Sergeant Sammy Baker in a great ten round bout in Madison Square Garden last night.

He will meet Dundee in a 15 round bout in the Garden on March 23 with the 147-pound title at stake.

Technically the welterweight champion is barred from fighting in New York state, but Tex Rickard will see to it that Dundee is reinstated at once.

A bout between Dundee and Hudkins probably will draw something in the neighborhood of $150,000.

The third meeting between Hudkins and Baker drew the largest crowd of the indoor season, 16,876 exceeding even the Sharkey-Heeny bout. The receipts were $76,459.

A rushing, tearing, ripping fighter, Hudkins has one of the largest followings of any man in the ring. He is popular with the crowd because he throws caution to the winds. Anything is likely to happen and frequently does.

More real fighting was packed into last night's fight than has been seen in the Garden this year.

After a slow first round Hudkins swung into action and still was going at top speed at the final bell. He whipped Baker decisively but he experienced several stormy moments before he came out on top.

Baker landed the hardest single blow of the fight in the eighth round—a right to the jaw that rocked Ace. Dazed, the Wildcat had to hang on through almost half the round.

Baker was on the floor twice and had his face cut and bleeding profusely through most of the fight. His lips were swollen from constant blows to the mouth.

A left to the side of the head dropped the sergeant unexpectedly in the second round. He took the count of nine but was on his knees at five.

A questionable low blow to the body in the fifth round sent Baker down again. He grabbed the lower regions of his body and slipped off the ropes to the floor to again take a count of nine. He had trouble finishing the round.

Hudkins won five rounds, Baker three and two were even.

The victory settled Hudkins' superiority over Baker who had won from him on a technical K. O. at the Polo Grounds last summer. Ace later took the decision from the sergeant in Los Angeles.

MAN WHO BEATS HIM MUST LEAD NATIONAL LEAGUE

MUCH TRADED STAR SAYS HE FEELS RIGHT AT BEGINNING OF SEASON

FOR 6 CONSECUTIVE YEARS HE LED THE LEAGUE IN BAT- TING AVERAGE

By FOSTER EATON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 18.—Something what defiantly, Rogers Hornsby packed his bat today and prepared for the Boston Braves winter quarters at St. Petersburg, Fla., with deliberate remark:

"The man who beats me this year will lead the league in batting."

The much traded star feels "right," he said, "but not any more so, I guess, than any other year." For six consecutive years he led the league, slumped when he managed the Cardinals, and recouped a bit last year with the Giants when he slumped .361.

Hornsby's life-time National League batting average—made in 1,689 games, is .3594, or .0004 less than the mark set by Paul Waner, the young Pittsburgh star, in 281 games. Waner took the life-time league record from Hornsby in 1927 when he led the league with .380.

The former Cardinals manager admitted Waner was "a great player" but added guardedly: "A man has got to be in there a period of years, and stay up to show whether he can stand that pace."

He was asked how the approaching National League campaign looked.

"On paper, the Pirates look like they ought to repeat," he said, "with the Cardinals, Cubs and Giants and perhaps Cincinnati giving them a good run."

"I expect the Braves to finish certainly not less than fourth or fifth, and you never can tell, they might be right up there among them."

Hornsby appeared optimistic about the fighting chances of the Braves. "They have a good hitting team and one of the best young pitching staffs in the business," he said. "Those are things that count."

"But really you've got to look them over before you can dope out where you think they ought to finish. Just as they are, however, Boston can't finish lower than fifth."

He was told that Manager McGraw of the Giants had been quoted as expecting Andy Cohen to outfield him in his post at second base and that McGraw felt the Giants lost "only in hitting power" by the now famous trade.

"Once in a while," he commented, "you can win a ball game with a great play in the field, but it's runs you hit in that count. Cohen is a good player; McGraw is a great manager."

Hornsby is due in St. Petersburg "Monday or Tuesday," he said.

As an after-thought he was asked whether he understood his trade to Boston any better now than he did the day it was made.

"Not a bit more," he replied. "That's simply baseball. I'm reporting at St. Petersburg Monday or Tuesday, and I'll give the Braves the best I've got."
